• Created in February 1998 in Palo Alto, California
• OSI is a global non-profit, protects and promotes open source software, development and communities, championing software freedom in society through education, collaboration, and infrastructure, stewarding the Open Source Definition (OSD), and preventing abuse of the ideals and ethos inherent to the open source movement.
What Is Open Source?

• A license that:
  • Requires no signatures
  • Allows access to source code (vs. compiled code)
  • Gives certain rights to use source code
  • Allows commercial use
  • May come with strings attached
  • Preserves Copyright
OS License Criteria

• Free Redistribution

• Source Code: must allow distribution in source code as well as compiled form

• Derived Works: must allow modifications and derived works, and must allow them to be distributed under the same terms as the license of the original software.

• Integrity of The Author's Source Code: must explicitly permit distribution of software built from modified source code, may require derived works to carry a different name or version number from the original software.

• No Discrimination Against Persons or Groups

• No Discrimination Against Fields of Endeavor

• Distribution of License: rights attached to the program must apply to all

• License Must Not Be Specific to a Product

• License Must Not Restrict Other Software: license must not insist that all other programs distributed on the same medium must be open-source software.

• License Must Be Technology-Neutral

How to Open Source

1. Select an OS license
2. Save as License.txt in the root folder
3. Include Copyright notice in the Source Code Headers
License Conditions
Creators choose a set of conditions they wish to apply to their work.

Attribution (by)
All CC licenses require that others who use your work in any way must give you credit the way you request, but not in a way that suggests you endorse them or their use. If they want to use your work without giving you credit or for endorsement purposes, they must get your permission first.

ShareAlike (sa)
You let others copy, distribute, display, perform, and modify your work, as long as they distribute any modified work on the same terms. If they want to distribute modified works under other terms, they must get your permission first.

NonCommercial (nc)
You let others copy, distribute, display, perform, and (unless you have chosen NoDerivatives) modify and use your work for any purpose other than commercially unless they get your permission first.

NoDerivatives (nd)
You let others copy, distribute, display and perform only original copies of your work. If they want to modify your work, they must get your permission first.
